

Empowering Accountability and Impact: MakSPH-METS Initiates Evaluations for Positive Change

Dr. Alan Armstrong giving an overview and introduction of PeerView® services.

The Board of Directors of the MakSPH-METS is pleased to announce that a newly formed, independent organization, the Center for Health Equity Research and Promotion (CHERP), is now the central point of contact for all peer review and quality improvement projects. The center provides programmatic and technical support and oversight to all quality improvement projects. The center's activities are guided by the Board and follow the "Strategy for Peer Review."

The center will focus on providing a central point of contact for all quality improvement projects. The center will also provide technical support and oversight to all quality improvement projects. The center will also provide oversight to all quality improvement projects.

Newsroom

1. New Study Shows that Peer Review is Associated with Improved Quality of Care
2. New Study Shows that Peer Review is Associated with Improved Quality of Care